In order to further expand the international communication, we launched the Journal of Xiangya Medicine in 2016. This comprehensive and international journal is the first journal named after a hospital in China. It is designed as open-access and peer-reviewed. It publishes up-to-date data and information in medicine and surgery. It is the creation of Xiangya hospital's globally-focused DNA. It aims to serve as a communication platform for health care professionals around the world. I'm glad to serve as the honorary Editor-in-Chief, working with the editorial panels, step by step to make it as prestigious as possible.
